Pathfinder Services Inc. spoke to a reading group at the Roanoke Public Library on Tuesday. Kari Goetz, and Matt Foster both of Pathfinder Services Inc. spent the morning talking to the reading group difficult life is every day for individuals with disabilities within the community.

Goetz had the reading group participate in several disability quizzes geared at putting the listeners in the place of adults with disabilities. Goetz also conducted an activity to show how adults with disabilities process information slower by making participants act out a list of ten instructions while only hearing them read once. Goetz and Foster distributed brochures and stickers to "Celebrate Disability Awareness 2006". Goetz and Foster answered any questions the public had regarding Disability Awareness Month and Pathfinder Services Inc.

March is Disability awareness month, and Pathfinder Services Inc. has spoken to students at Huntington North High School, Roanoke Elementary, and Huntington Catholic School, and has provided information to the students on programs available for people with disabilities in Huntington County.

Pathfinder Services, Inc. is a not-for-profit human services organization based in Huntington, where it was founded in 1966. In addition to Huntington County, Pathfinder Services also provides services in Wabash, Marshall and Starke Counties. Pathfinder Services Inc. serves over 200 adults with disabilities in the counties they serve. For more information on Pathfinder Services Inc. please call (260) 356-0500.
